

A Porcelain Collection

PORZÉ

BY HILLTOP

Nature's Gift in Good Hands!

TM

Keeping true to our mission to evolve continuously, Hilltop proudly introduces Porzé.

Porzé is a new line of sleek porcelain slabs with various designs, patterns, and colours.

With the growing shortage of natural stones, there is an increasing demand for look-alikes of natural stones.

This is where Porzé fits in the market—these slabs are thin, light sintered, and its properties are suitable for kitchen countertops, flooring, cladding etc.

Going by history, the porcelain was vastly used because of its properties such as porosity and ability to compact itself well. Compact porcelains are dense, non-porous and thus very much suited for commercial and residential purposes.

At Hilltop, it is available in large and medium size formats of 3200 x 1600 x 12 mm and 2400 x 1200 x 6 mm.

The light grey patterns that flow down like streams are a pleasure to look at on any application. They look like a softly flowing waterfall against the white base. The dark grey or dark black lines accentuated the path of grey streams thereby highlighting the pattern of the tile. The grey, gold, and widely spaced veins are easy on the eyes and add elegance to the room. Install them for an airy and flowy look in your room.

Calacatta Borghini

Calacatta Borghini

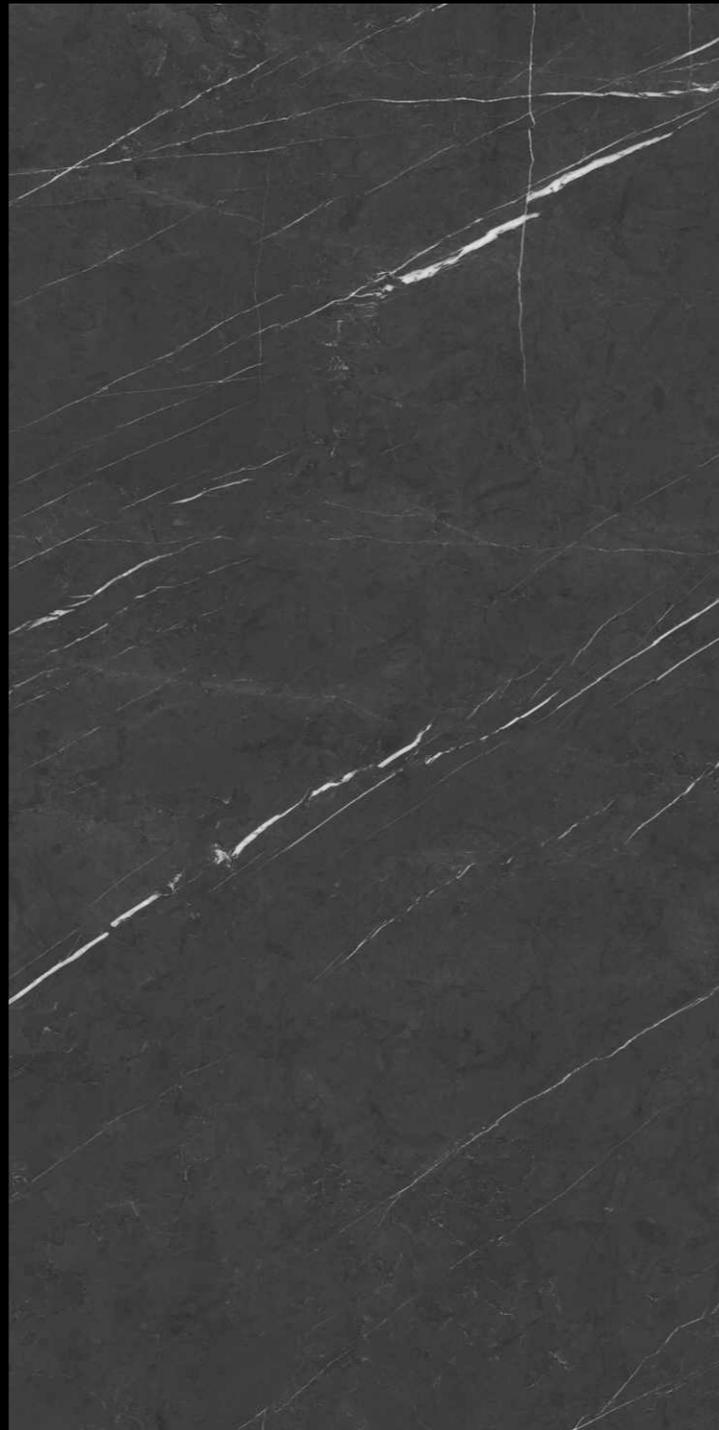

Natural stones are not the only ones that can add sophistication to your home, porcelain tiles do the deed as good as natural stones. Calacatta Borghini is one such tile.

The dramatic grey veins on the white background, the spaced veins – each running in different lengths create an illusion of space and make the walls look longer and wider. Under light, the mild golden streaks on the grey veins are highlighted beautifully.
